

Here are some of the jokes I've written for a conservative political website. Keep in mind I'm writing for a very specific audience— so you may not like many of these jokes. Many are more mean than funny... but that's what they're buying.

These are not examples of the type of jokes I tell on stage, but some people on my mailing list have asked for more of these jokes, so here they are. Of the jokes I've written for Jay Leno I can show people only the ones that he did not buy (some of which are on the Expired Comedy page of www.BrainChampagne.com and some others in my monthly comedy email). The political website has been gracious enough to grant me permission to let you read any of the jokes I've written for them, including those they have used. So here they are...

- Shaun

Japan's justice minister is looking for more peaceful ways to execute convicts. Their current method? Making people watch Al Gore lectures until they scream themselves to death.

The Countrywide mortgage company reported losing over a billion dollars last quarter. Apparently their strategy of lending lots and lots of money to poor people just didn't pan out.

The Dalai Lama admitted this week that he has no idea how to go about ending the war in Iraq. So Hillary crossed him off her list of potential candidates for Secretary of Defense.

85% of Americans surveyed said that employers would be wrong to fire the obese... except if the obese person is Ted Kennedy.

Presidential candidate Fred Thompson has been traveling the country in a jet lent to him by a convicted drug dealer. When asked to comment Thompson said "Hey, it was either a drug dealer or an oil company. I think I made the ethical choice."

Former president George H.W. Bush said that just because he's friends with Bill Clinton he won't tip-toe around presidential candidate Hillary. Bill said "Don't worry, you don't have to tip-toe, Hillary's a very sound sleeper, otherwise I wouldn't still be married to her."

Barack Obama says he's not opposed to all wars, only dumb wars. Dumb wars, like the Democratic debates.

Hillary says she's calling her health care plan "The American Health Choices Plan." What that means is, the government gets to choose who stays sick and who actually gets to see a doctor.

John Edwards says he wants every single American to have access to health care. Single Americans, sure, but what about the married ones?

John Edwards says he wants every American to have access to health care. And he promises to pay for it without increasing taxes on haircuts or manicures.

Dennis Kucinich says we can provide health care for all Americans. He wants to pay for it with a tax on tall people.

Nicole Kidman testified that she was scared when a celebrity photographer chased her. She said it was almost as terrifying as being married to Tom Cruise.

An Alabama woman finally received her high school diploma-- on her hundredth birthday. Democrats say that proves that their education policy is working.

A government study said that Americans are reading less than ever. At least I think that's what the study said-- I only glanced at the headline.

Animal experts are surprised that a lost dog voluntarily returned to the vet who neutered him. I'm not surprised-- Bill returns to Hillary every night.

London officials have created sat-lav, which uses satellite technology to help Londoners find a restroom in a hurry. No word on when they're launching sat-dentist.

Terrorists in Slovakia have been intercepted trying to make a dirty bomb. Not only do they hate our values, the terrorists are also messy.

On Friday morning Barack Obama had breakfast with NYC's billionaire mayor Michael Bloomberg. It was reported that Obama picked up the check-- proving once again that Democrats are no good with money-- who buys breakfast for a billionaire?

A man running for office in Thailand is handing out free Viagra to anyone who promises to vote for him. And in NY, political aides are handing out eye shades and earplugs before Hillary speeches.

In Chile a prostitute is auctioning off 27 hours of sex to raise money for charity. And today Bill Clinton announced his new global initiative to support charitable efforts in South America.

In New York City stage-hands and theater producers reached agreement on a new contract. The stage-hands accepted new work rules and the producers promised not to make a musical version of Legally Blonde 2.

Astronomers have discovered the existence of thunderstorms on the planet Venus. Democrats say that's proof of global warming.

On Wednesday the stock market rose over 300 points. Democrats say that's proof of global warming.

Home prices declined again last month... which Democrats say is proof of global warming.

Doctors examining the man who took hostages at a Clinton campaign office declared him mentally ill. They made the diagnosis after he told them that he's supporting Hillary for president.

Yahoo reported that the top search in 2007 was for Britney Spears. Mostly by Child Services.

Health experts say that obesity rates in the U.S. are finally leveling off. Since the Democrats took over Congress many Americans just can't afford to keep eating.

Al Gore's website was taken over by hackers. He's blaming it on global warming.

This week Al Gore accepted his Nobel Peace Prize. Which went a long way toward helping to cure global warming. As Gore accepted the prize, hell froze over.

Pitcher Roger Clemens says that his trainer didn't give him steroids but only injected him with vitamin B-12. Right, and Lindsay Lohan's water bottle contains water.

In Chicago, two cleaning women were trapped inside a broken elevator for two days, surviving on only cough drops and aspirin. They said it was still better than being home surrounded by the news of the Iowa Caucuses.

A new study says that being happy is good for your health. Great, give me another thing to be unhappy about.

Global warming shouldn't be a problem anymore. This week Libya took over as head of the U. N. Security Council, and hell froze over.

People in Idaho are trying to stop a funeral home from opening directly across the street from a senior center... but Al Gore touts it as a great way to cut back on the use of gasoline.

Texas researchers are working on a vaccine to help people stop using cocaine. This is a bad business decision-- the only time people want to get off cocaine is when they've run out of money for it-- so how are they going to pay for the drug?

Two overweight men in Louisiana are fighting a restaurant that banned them from coming back to the buffet for eating too much. It may not be legal to ban them-- why doesn't the restaurant just narrow the doorways?

Hillary keeps describing Barack Obama as inexperienced. And if anybody knows anything about men who have a lot of experience, it's the wife of Slick Willy. (and by the way, the term Slick Willy doesn't refer to her ENTIRE husband, just parts of him)

The Iowa Caucuses and the New Hampshire primary are just a waste of time and money-- they don't determine who gets to be president. Let's just have Florida and Ohio vote-- they're the only states that ever make a difference, so the rest of us in the other forty eight states can just stay home and relax.

This week Britney Spears was brought to a mental hospital. She told people she was supporting Ron Paul for president and was told she needed to have her head examined.

After the Iowa caucuses Connecticut Senator Chris Dodd and the senator from the state of plagiarism Joe Biden dropped out of the race. Or more correctly, Dodd dropped out and Biden just copied him.

Presidential campaign loser John Kerry has endorsed Barack Obama for president. And no one was more relieved to hear this than... all the other Democratic candidates.

Sir Edmund Hillary, the first man to climb Mount Everest, has passed away. The only man ever to mount Hillary, however, is still going strong (insert photo: Bill Clinton).

A 66 year old Austrian woman lived for almost a year with the corpse of her partner. Bill Clinton said "I kind of know what that feels like."

A new report says that the FBI had many of their wiretaps cut off because they didn't pay their bills on time. Who's running the FBI? Democrats?

A Swedish company plans to use body heat from commuters to warm their offices. When told about this possibly energy-saving idea, Hillary said "What's body heat?"

The Giuliani campaign is asking some workers to give up getting paid. Expecting people to work for free? Is Rudy a Democrat now?

The new governor of Louisiana is vowing to fight corruption. His first act? To change the name of the previously Democrat-run state to "NOT Louisiana."

GM plans to make bio fuel out of garbage. And by 'garbage' they mean the Democratic candidates' economic policies.

Pointing out that it isn't only black people who support her husband, Mrs. Obama said "Ain't no black people in Iowa." Right, and there ain't no grammar in Iowa, either.

A burglar in Germany called the police to report that he found a dead body in an apartment he'd broken into. Bill Clinton said that if he had to report every time he found a dead body whenever he came home, his phone bill would be so big he'd have to go back for more Chinese bribe money.

After watching Senator John McCain win the Republican South Carolina primary, Democratic candidates are rushing to campaign for their primary in South Carolina next week. Proving once again that the Democrats are way behind the Republicans.

Barack Obama says that there were voting irregularities in the Nevada primary that caused him to lose votes. Come on, senator, isn't it likely that all the gamblers, drunks and whores chose to vote for Clinton just out of name recognition?

- or -

Barack Obama says that there were voting irregularities in the Nevada primary that caused him to lose votes. Come on, senator, isn't it just likely that all the whores want Hillary to win just so they'd be able to spend more time with Bill?

Experts say that even though the surge in Iraq is working, Democrats refuse to listen... apparently whenever they hear the word Surge they think it's just something to do with Bill Clinton's pants.

A new survey says that the number of abortions declined significantly in 2007-- experts say that pregnancies are down mostly because Hillary has been keeping a better eye on Bill.

A Georgia woman was arrested while waiting for a bus after committing a bank robbery. Democrats say that this is just the kind of ingenuity and dedication that's the backbone of their economic, environmental and energy policies.

Democrat Dennis Kucinich announced that he's dropping out of the presidential race. Now he can go back to his old job-- jockey.

Democrat Dennis Kucinich announced that he's dropping out of the presidential race. Now he can go back to what he does best-- (insert photo of him standing next to his attractive wife)-- making ugly guys think they might actually have a shot with women.

British singer Amy Winehouse is being investigated after a videotape surfaced showing her snorting ecstasy and cocaine, after claiming to have taken six valium. That's a LOT of drugs. Keith Richards, I think we found your soulmate.

A new study says that spouses who fight live longer. I guess the Clintons will be around FOREVER.

A new survey says that it's not Republicans or Democrats who are the best lovers-- it's independents. And most women admit they like a guy with money. So ladies, it turns out, your dream date? Ross Perot.

Hillary Clinton has left her six years as a director of Wal-Mart off her official biography. Apparently the Democrats are AGAINST companies that save poor people money and provide millions of jobs.

Rudy Giuliani has quit his presidential campaign. He's going back to his previous job-- claiming to be a 9/11 hero in the private sector.

-or-

Rudy Giuliani has quit his presidential campaign. He's going back to his old job-- cheating on his wife in the private sector.

Supporters of traditional values are upset that Rudy Giuliani has quit running for president. They say he WAS THE Family Values candidate-- because no candidate has had more families than Giuliani.

Brittney Spears has been brought to the mental health clinic at UCLA Medical Center. Her psychiatrist said he first realized she had symptoms of severe mental illness when she mentioned that she thought Barack Obama was qualified to be president.

California Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger has endorsed Senator John McCain. At least I think that's what he said-- he might've said "I endure my pain."

A survey says that a quarter of British people think that former prime minister Winston Churchill was a fictional character. I'm sorry to report that, unfortunately, Hillary is real.

Scientists succeeded in getting a mouse to catch a cold, which they say could either lead to a breakthrough in curing colds, or at least piss off a lot of mice.

Liberal scientists are supporting McCain-- they say he's so old he HAS to believe in evolution.

McCain thinks that just because he goes drinking with Hillary it doesn't make him a liberal. Of course not-- if he were a liberal he wouldn't be drinking with Hillary, he'd be smoking pot with Bill.

Hillary put five million dollars of her own money into her campaign. Bill said it'd be okay with him if she used ten million-- anything that gets her out of the house.

A new report says that tobacco could kill a billion people by the year 2100. I think this is Hillary's new military strategy-- instead of having an actual army she just wants to ship Marlboros to Iraq.

A new study says that a large number of sex ed teachers lack proper training... and immediately Bill Clinton volunteered to help.

Good news and bad news. The good news? In New York the FBI arrested 62 members of organized crime for racketeering. The bad news? It was the Gambino family, not the Clinton family.

In New York the FBI arrested 62 members of organized crime for racketeering. Members of organized crime conspicuously absent from the list? Bill and Hillary.

Barack Obama is saying that the Clintons should release their tax returns to show where the $5 million Hillary lent her campaign came from. I don't know why Obama wants to see the information-- he can't read Chinese.

A new study says that sadness makes people spend more money. You know what this means-- Hillary's suffering from $5 million worth of sadness.

Scientists have created a knee brace that generates enough electricity to recharge a cell phone. If you can't remember to plug in your phone, what are the odds you'll remember to put on the knee brace?

People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals are annoyed at a bill that would make fried chicken Kentucky's official picnic food. In response, Kentucky offered to make PETA the state's official jackass.

A new bill in Kentucky would make fried chicken the state's official picnic food. No word on whether they'll also make Lipitor the state's official anti-cholesterol medication.

The board of Yahoo plans to reject Microsoft's bid to buy the company. Experts say it's the first time Bill Gates has been turned down since, well, every time he asked a girl out before he became a billionaire.

An earthquake in Baja left 400,000 Mexicans without electricity or access to the McCain campaign's amnesty for illegal aliens program.

This is clearly a turning-point in our nation's history. Running for president we have Obama-- a black man, Hillary-- a woman, and McCain-- a Civil War veteran.

The brown pelican, once almost extinct, is now so plentiful it's getting off the Endangered Species List. Off the Endangered Species List, onto the menu at KFC.

Scientists have invented a no-tears onion. Now if you want to cry while slicing an onion you'll have to remind yourself that in a year Hillary could be president.

Amy Winehouse won five Grammys, including record of the year, song of the year and worst denial of an addiction.

A new study says that vitamin deficiency may triple the risk of dementia. I guess that's as good an explanation as any for Hillary's popularity.

Saudi Arabian religious police have banned roses for Valentine's Day. And if you think this isn't a big deal, remember how many wives the average Saudi prince has.

General Motors lost $38 billion dollars last year. I had no idea the Democrats were running GM.

A new poll shows that Barack Obama would narrowly beat John McCain. If you're having trouble telling these two liberals apart... Obama's the young one (what did you think I was going to say?).

In campaign speeches, Barack Obama praised the spirit of Abraham Lincoln. In response, John McCain said "I knew Abraham Lincoln, I served in Congress with Abraham Lincoln, Lincoln was a friend of mine, and you, senator, are no Abraham Lincoln."

Saudi Arabian religious police have banned roses for Valentine's Day, so Saudi couples have to find another way to express their love. How about we start with taking off the veil?

The head of the American Federation of Teachers stepped down this week. Here's his resignation note: (insert sign: I KWIT).

The writers strike is over. Experts say that sit-coms will start to return next month, and by April Hillary will have a whole new pack of lies for her campaign speeches.

Dolly Parton has cancelled plans to tour because her large breasts have led to a sore back. So at least this week the biggest boobs in the news aren't Obama and Hillary.

Indonesian police plan to spray colored liquids on people riding on the tops of trains so they can be identified later. It's the same thing we real Republicans plan to do to McCain voters.

A radio station in West Virginia is having an internet contest and the prize is a free divorce. In a related story, Hillary will be campaigning in internet cafes for the rest of the day.

Scientists have discovered two new breeds of 110 million year old flesh-eating dinosaurs. Senator McCain said not to worry-- he remembers that they don't like the taste of people.

Because their parliament building's being renovated, Ireland's senators will have to share a building with a museum housing prehistoric creatures... kind of like Mrs. McCain does now.

In Colorado on Valentine's Day undercover police pretending to deliver flowers arrested 23 people on outstanding warrants. The men said it was still better than having to pay for roses on Valentine's Day.

Former President George H.W. Bush has endorsed McCain for president, calling him a great American hero going all the way back to the American Revolution.

Hillary's top campaign adviser, who pushed to strip Michigan and Florida of their delegates for having early primaries, now wants their votes to count. Gee, do you think maybe it's because Hillary won those states?

You may not think this is the best joke, but I'm sure you're glad that when I used Hillary and Strip in the same sentence I wasn't talking about clothing!

Chelsea Clinton says that she doesn't plan to move back to the White House. Well, Chelsea, that's not our plan for you either. Or your mother.

Barack Obama won the Democrats Abroad primary... even though Fidel Castro voted for Hillary.

Russian President Putin warned former Soviet Republic about joining NATO. And former Soviet Premier Gorbachev warned Donald Trump about joining the Hair Club for Men.

Experts say that gas prices may begin to come down. Which is good news for everyone planning to flee the country if Hillary gets elected.

Scientists say the next human plague is likely to come from animal contact... or Paris Hilton.

McCain supporters are outraged that the New York Times would insinuate that the senator had an extra-marital affair. And they're particularly annoyed because nobody would believe the same rumors about Hillary... not that she wouldn't HAVE an affair. But with WHOM?

Hillary has been criticizing mailings by the Obama campaign, claiming they're misleading. Of course they are-- they say that Obama's qualified to run the country.

John McCain said that Raul Castro would be an even worse leader than his brother Fidel. Later he apologized, saying that he meant that Obama would be a worse leader than Fidel.

Hospitals in Sweden are introducing unisex underwear... so now if Michael Jackson ends up in a hospital in Sweden there won't be any confusion.

A new study says that one in ten home loans is under water. Congratulations, Democrats, you're off to a good start.

Hillary compared Barack Obama to President Bush. Well, they do have one thing in common-- come next January, neither one's going to be president.

A Japanese scientist believes that laughter is a weapon that can end war. I think he's right-- here's a sample (insert footage of Hillary cackling)-- blast that at the enemy and they're sure to surrender!

Barack Obama says that a new Hillary Clinton ad is scaring voters. Senator Obama, I don't think it's the COMMERCIAL that's scaring voters... it's Hillary.

The Secretary of the Treasury wants to eliminate pennies. That's a bad idea-- if Hillary becomes president, pennies are what most of us are going to have to live on.

In Ohio Hillary's lead over Obama is shrinking. Said President Bill Clinton-- it's not only in Ohio that Hillary makes things shrink.

NYC Mayor Mike Bloomberg announced that he's not running for president. Last month former NYC Mayor Rudy Giuliani announced that he's no longer running for president. So that's two New Yorkers down, one to go.

For the first time in American history more than 1% of American adults are in prison... almost half of them from the Clinton administration.

Vermont is thinking about lowering the drinking age to 18-- which is good news for 18 year olds who want to go on a four year bender if Hillary wins.

A new survey says that women voters are abandoning their support for Hillary just as fast as men are. Who says women aren't as smart as men?

Hillary raised 35 million dollars in February... and that's just from Bill trying to keep her away from home a little longer.

Italian police arrested a gang selling fake Ferraris. And in the U.S. John McCain is worried about being arrested for being a fake conservative.

A new study says that taking the herb ginkgo biloba may help protect your memory... if only I could remember to take it.

Two new sex studies in the news (got your attention, now, don't I?). The first study says that quicker sex is often more pleasurable. This study was obviously done by men. And a new survey says that men who do more housework get more sex. This survey? Done by women.

A new survey says that men who do more housework get more sex. This probably means that my mother... is sleeping with her housekeeper.

Barack Obama says he's tired of questions about his religion. He's about as tired of those questions as America is about him.

Last week Hillary appeared on Saturday Night Live. Of course-- her whole campaign's a joke.

A new BBC report says that the Hells Angels plotted to kill Rolling Stone Mick Jagger. At first they wanted to kill Keith Richards, but then they realized that he's invincible!

Hillary and Obama say they're gearing up for a long battle... and this constitutes all of their military experience.

Hillary and Obama may team up as running mates. Great, so in November we can vote against both of them at the same time.

Experts say that to energize the Republican Party Senator McCain should pick a younger, more conservative candidate as his running mate, possibly a woman. Let's see, younger, more conservative than he is, female... how about... Hillary?

Hillary raised $3 million dollars on line last month. Gee, I hope it's not from selling her sex tape.

An independent group is airing an anti-McCain ad. The name of this group? Republicans.

An advisor to the Obama campaign resigned after calling Hillary a monster. The advisor's just been hired by Bill Clinton to help him screen chicks.

An advisor to the Obama campaign was forced to resign after calling Hillary a monster. Just another example of the Democrats denying the truth.

Ron Paul said that he's thinking about quitting the Republican race for president... now that he's already lost. He also said he's thinking about not playing in the 2008 Super Bowl, not running in the 1986 New York Marathon and not dating Greta Garbo when she turns 18.

A new study says that happiness can be inherited. Thanks, dad, but I'd rather have the cash.

An Oklahoma thief was arrested after police found fortune cookies in his possession after the burglary of two Chinese restaurants. His fortune? Hurry up and eat the cookies before the police catch you.

A new study says that non-drinkers who start drinking will live longer. Another reason to start drinking? Hillary is ahead in the polls.

Hillary says that if the phone rings at the White House at 3 AM she's the one who should answer it. Of course she is-- because if the phone rings at the White House at 3 AM it's probably Bill calling because he locked himself out again.

A new scientific dating technique shows that the Grand Canyon is at least 17 million years old...

that's 3 years older than John McCain.

Senator John McCain said that the U.S. tortured detainees. But he admitted it was nothing compared with people who had to listen to Hillary's speeches.

A new study says that anxiety may help people live longer-- this is the basis of Hillary's health care plan-- elect Hillary, get upset, live longer.

A new health study says that 1 in four teenage girls has a sexually-transmitted disease. And probably at least 1 in 50 governors...

The country's syphilis rate has increased for the seventh year in a row. Hasn't President Clinton been out of office for seven years?

A news report says that Barack Obama is spending 1.5 million dollars a day. And none of it on hookers. Are we sure he's really a Democrat?

A spokeswoman for President Bush, responding to a question about polls, said that America might be over-pollled. In response, Hillary said that it's been years since anybody's polled her.

Art experts are saying that a lot of buyers of Picassos and other artists ended up with phony art. But that's nothing-- America may end up with a phony Republican president (insert picture of McCain).

An Illinois man was arrested after a high-speed chase, driving a stolen doughnut van. He was apprehended by seven thousand police officers... who immediately impounded the van, and its contents, as evidence.

This week is National Poison Prevention Week-- so Hillary has been stopped from making speeches.

British scientists, after an exhaustive study, have actually found a smidgen of truth in one of Hillary's speeches.

April Fools!

Hillary Clinton said she 'misspoke' about sniper fire on her 1996 trip to Bosnia. For those of you who don't understand, 'misspoke' is an English word meaning 'lies told by a Democrat.'

Presidential candidates have raised over a billion dollars in campaign donations-- that's more than the worth of third-world countries. Which is an interesting co-incidence, because if Hillary wins, America will become a third-world country.

An Australian scientist says he's close to perfecting a method of stopping the spread of cancer by putting the cancer cells to sleep. He just needs to figure out which Al Gore speech to use.